THE TIME LORDS OF GALLIFREY

"Through the millenia, the Time Lords of Gallifrey led a life of peace and ordered calm, protected against all threats from lesser civilisations by their great power . . ."

Found in the constellation of Kasterborus, Gallifrey is the home planet of the elitist Time Lords, a group of observers who have mastered the concepts and theories of time travel. Governed by the Laws of Time laid down by their founder, Rassilon, the Time Lords are almost omnipotent have stagnated as a result. After their disastrous interference in the affairs of the planet Minyos, they adopted a non-interventionist policy and have generally become known throughout the galaxies as an impressive but unthreatening people.

Gallifrey has been subject to at least one attempted invasion when the combined forces of the Vardans and the Sontarans attempted to claim mastery over time. With the use of technology and knowledge from their earlier, less moralist period, the invaders were defeated.

Gallifrey's ancient history seems littered with dubious amoralities, and indeed even modern Gallifreyan political factions are not averse to abusing their great powers to serve their own ends, such as placing the Doctor on trial and using him as a scapegoat to cover up their own serious errors of judgement.

Although a majority of Time Lords and other Gallifreyans are content with their lives, many have opted out of the rigid culture. The Doctor, the Master and the Rani are some of those who chose a nomadic lifestyle far away from the cloisters and panopticons of Gallifreyan life.

THE COMPANIONS

Susan played by Carole Ann Ford

Romana (I) played by Mary Tamm

Romana (II) played by Lalla Ward

Only twice has the Doctor been accompanied on his travels by a member of his own people. Susan, his granddaughter, adopted the surname Foreman (from the junkyard where the TARDIS was based in 1963) and travelled with him until she fell in love with a human being, remaining on Earth in the twenty-first century.

Romana was a Time Lady appointed to assist him in the search for the Key to Time.

Ignoring the call to return to Gallifrey, she elected to remain with the time sensitive Tharils and help them free their fellows from slavery.

(IV) played by Philip Latham

Borusa (I)

Borusa (II)

Borusa (III)

Borusa (IV)

One of a host of Time Lords who attended the Prydon Academy under the tutorship of Borusa, the Master eventually fled Gallifrey and its restrictive practices. Unlike the Doctor, however, the Master set out to use his incredible hypnotic prowess and intellect to gain power, having little regard for the lives he destroyed to achieve his aims.

Having learned that the Doctor was exiled to Earth, the Master sought out his old nemesis and proceeded to use a variety of alien life-forms to attempt to destroy the planet.

He rarely tried to kill the Doctor directly, preferring to order others to do it for him. Whether this was some kind of safeguard to ensure the Doctor's continued survival seems unclear, but even in his latest, more vicious and sadistic incarnation, he still seems incapable of ever delivering that final, fatal blow . . .

The Doctor's Academy teacher and mentor, Borusa was one of the most respected and wise Time Lords to emerge from the Prydonian Chapter. Fiercely loyal and pragmatic, Borusa was not adverse to altering the facts to fit a better record of history. A leading opponent of the Sontarans during their attempted invasion, his accession from Cardinal to Chancellor ultimately led to his Presidency. However, even Borusa fell victim to the old adage that ultimate power corrupts, and as the secret knowledge of Ancient Gallifrey's darker past became his by right of office, Borusa saw the opportunity to become President Eternal. He played the Game of Rassilon, unaware that it was a series of traps laid by Rassilon to ensure no Time Lord could ever gain such a position.

Ultimately, Borusa obtained his eternal existence, not as a flesh and blood President, but as a living sculpture in Rassilon's tomb.

Omega (I)

OMEGA

(I) played by Stephen Thorne

(II) played by Ian Collier

A contemporary of Rassilon, Omega was a temporal engineer who made the ultimate sacrifice by detonating the black hole that empowered the Time Lord's ability to manipulate time. Believed long-dead, he in fact existed in a universe of anti-matter, embittered and malevolent. He twice attempted to return, regardless of the catastrophic effect this would have on the universe of matter . . .

Omega (III)

THE MONK

played by Peter Butterworth

A renegade Time Lord whose motives in disturbing the web of time were not so much evil as amoral and selfish. After two encounters with the First Doctor, the Monk seems to have faded from sight . . .

The Monk

AZMAEL

played by Maurice Denham

An old friend of the Doctor's who left Gallifrey to become the peaceful master of Jaconda, a world he died defending

Azrael

MORBIUS

voiced by Michael Spice

A Time Lord criminal believed executed. His brain, however, was kept alive and placed inside a giant monster on the planet Karn

The Marbus Monster

THE RANI

played by Kate O'Mara

A contemporary of the Doctor and the Master at the Prydon Academy, a highly immoral chemistry genius who ruled the planet Miasimia Goria

The Rani

K'ANPO RINPOCHE

played by George Cormack

The Doctor's hermit-like guru who lived on a mountain on Gallifrey. He eventually came to Earth where he lived in peace in a monastery in southern England

K'Anpo

PROFESSOR CHRONOTIS

played by Denis Carey

Apparently a rather befuddled renegade Chronototis was in fact the Gallifreyan criminal Salyavin. He fled to Cambridge to escape his past

Chronotis

... and other

The President

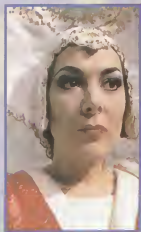

TIME LORD PRESIDENTS

(I) played by Roy Purcell
(II) played by Llewellyn Rees

Hierarchical leader of the Time Lord council, the President is seen by many as more of a figurehead than a political statesman. Certainly during the first Omega crisis, it is the Chancellor who seems to wield the power. After the assassination of a subsequent President, the post became more active, President Borusa especially so

The President

The Inquisitor

played by Lynda Bellingham

The judge placed in charge of the Sixth Doctor's trial. Fair and genial, she was nevertheless determined to get at the truth. The Doctor suggested that she become President

THE VALEYARD

played by Michael Jayston

In reality an amalgam of the Doctor's potential future evil aspects, the Valeyard was the Sixth Doctor's prosecutor during his trial

The Valeyard

Spandrell

CASTELLAN SPANDRELL

played by George Pravda

Initially sceptical, Spandrell's determination to discover the truth about the Time Lord President's assassination made him an ally of the Fourth Doctor

COORDINATOR ENGIN

played by Erik Chitty

Engin also sought to quash the charges made against the Fourth Doctor, and helped him enter the Matrix to discover the real assassin

Engin

Kelner

CASTELLAN KELNER

played by Milton Johns

When the Sontarans invaded Gallifrey, Kelner ensured he was a favoured aide, unconcerned with the fate of the other Time Lords

THE CASTELLAN

played by Paul Jerricho

The Castellan, who was present during the second Omega crisis, became a victim of Borusa's quest for eternal life. Framed as a traitor, he was later killed by one of Borusa's guards

The Castellan

r Gallifreyans

Radan

CONTROLLER RODAN

played by Hilary Ryan

A space traffic controller who befriended Leela during the Sontaran invasion and helped the Doctor construct the Demat Gun

COMMANDER ANDRED

played by Christopher Tranchell

The leader of the Chancellory Guard during the Sontaran invasion. Leela and K9 Mk I chose to remain on Gallifrey with him at the conclusion of the incident.

Andred

Thalia

CHANCELLOR THALIA

played by Elspet Grey

A member of the High Council during the second Omega crisis. Pragmatic and forthright, she saw little option but to execute the Doctor

CHANCELLOR FLAVIA

played by Dinah Sheridan

One of the Inner Council who asked the Master to help find the Doctor when the Game of Rassilon was reactivated. The Doctor appointed her Acting-President

Flavia

Runcible

COMMENTATOR RUNCIBLE

played by Hugh Walters

Another contemporary of the Doctor, Runcible the fatuous (as he was known) became the leading commentator on political events on Gallifrey. He was murdered by the Master

COUNCILLOR HEDIN

played by Michael Gough

A follower of tradition, the misguided Hedin attempted to return Omega to the normal universe and died for his beliefs

Hedin

Chancellory Guards

CHANCELLORY GUARDS

Answerable to the Castellan, the Guards are a mostly ceremonial military battalion, but nevertheless a formidable fighting force

THE OUTSIDERS

Many Time Lords and other Gallifreyans have rejected the ways of life within the Capitol and either fled or chosen to live in the wastelands, reverting to a less technocratic way of life. Loyal to their planet, however, many of them returned to repel the Sontaran invasion
